

S&P 500 Index March 9, 2009 – December 31, 2018

Market corrections are normal. However, because of the Great Recession of 2008-2009, every downturn—big or small—feels like the next “Great Disaster.” History has shown us that corrections are part of a healthy, thriving market environment.

There were 25 corrections of 5-20% during the secular bull market of 1982 – 2000, and one correction that was greater than 20%. Still, the long-term trend kept moving upward steadily. At the end of that secular bull market, the S&P 500 Index had grown 1363%. From the March 2009 lows through December 2018, the market saw 19 corrections of 5% or more. Even with those corrections, the long-term trend has remained strong and the S&P 500 Index earned 355% for the period.

Source: Bloomberg. Includes dividends. Each correction is identified from a peak to trough following a new high for the time period being examined.

Commentary offered for informational and educational purposes only. Opinions and forecasts regarding markets, securities, products, portfolios or holdings are given as of the date provided and are subject to change at any time. No offer to sell, solicitation, or recommendation of any security or investment product is intended. Certain information and data has been supplied by unaffiliated third-parties as indicated. Although Meeder believes the information is reliable, it cannot warrant the accuracy, timeliness or suitability of the information or materials offered by third-parties.

Investment Advisory Services provided by Meeder Asset Management, Inc.

© 2019 Meeder Investment Management, Inc.