Over The Last Week
As of October 8, 2021
Quick Take

- The short-term model decreased over the past week but remains positive primarily due to long-term market trends.
- The intermediate-term model worsened slightly but remains positive. We continue to observe increased expectations for rising interest rates, which are being partially offset by bearish market newsletters, a contrarian factor.
- The long-term model score remains very negative. Despite low credit risk, the model remains weak due to poor market breadth, high valuations, and weakening long-term trends.

Overall Model Output

A Closer Look at Our Tactical Positioning Targets

Each day, Meeder analyzes and ranks over 70 different factors from our short, intermediate, and long-term models. The dynamic statistical model incorporates factors covering macroeconomic, fundamental, trends and technical analysis to estimate the potential reward and marketplace risk of the equity markets. The Meeder Spectrum, Muirfield, Balanced, Moderate Allocation, and Conservative Allocation funds utilize this strategy for the Defensive Equity portion of their portfolios. The Defensive Equity Strategy guides the allocation of each fund's equity sleeve and the actual proportion of equity investments in any fund will vary depending on the investment objectives of the fund.

Understanding the Defensive Equity Snapshot

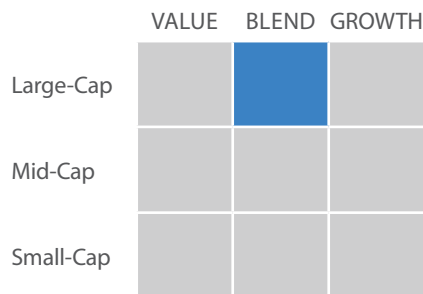

The vertical axis of the grid combines the scores of our long-, intermediate-, and short-term models to arrive at the reward value for the stock market. The horizontal axis represents the model's internal measure of stock market risk. The reward value is divided by marketplace risk to arrive at our recommended percentage of Net Equity Exposure.
