Over The Last Week
As of May 7, 2021

Quick Take

- + The long-term model remains positive. Factors contributing to the positive score include strong domestic momentum, sustained global trends, and positive sub-industry momentum.
- The intermediate-term model score declined over the past week, driven primarily by more optimistic market sentiment. The largest shifts in sentiment were observed in the proportion of advancing and declining issues and in option activity.
- = Long-term model valuation factors remain negative, driven primarily by the continue rise in prices relative to earnings. The portion of the long-term model was partially offset by continued strength in credit spreads and momentum in the credit markets. Additionally, low interest rates and low levels of inflation continue to help justify high equity valuations.

A Closer Look at Our Tactical Positioning Targets

Each day, Meeder analyzes and ranks over 70 different factors from our short, intermediate, and long-term models. The dynamic statistical model incorporates factors covering macroeconomic, fundamental, trends and technical analysis to estimate the potential reward and marketplace risk of the equity markets. The Meeder Spectrum, Muirfield, Balanced, Moderate Allocation, and Conservative Allocation funds utilize this strategy for the Defensive Equity portion of their portfolios. The Defensive Equity Strategy guides the allocation of each fund's equity sleeve and the actual proportion of equity investments in any fund will vary depending on the investment objectives of the fund.

Understanding the Defensive Equity Snapshot

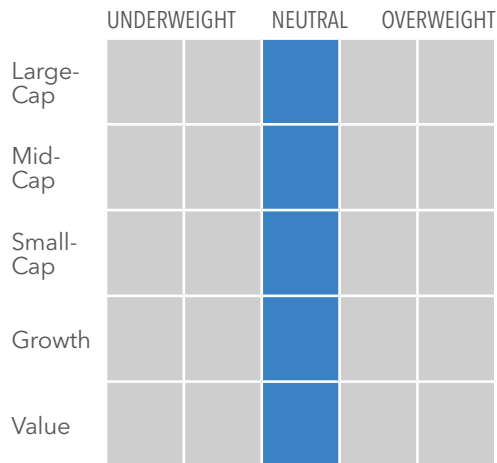

The vertical axis of the grid combines the scores of our long-, intermediate-, and short-term models to arrive at the reward value for the stock market. The horizontal axis represents the model's internal measure of stock market risk. The reward value is divided by marketplace risk to arrive at our recommended percentage of Net Equity Exposure.
