Over The Last Week
As of July 2, 2021

Quick Take

-  The short-term model score remains positive. Both long-term and short-term trends continue to be very positive.
-  The long-term model score worsened over the past week and remains slightly below average. We continue to observe positive long-term trends, global market participation, and low levels of credit risk, but high valuations and inflation continue to weigh on the model.
-  The intermediate-term model score remains negative. Increased expectations for higher interest rates and high volume into equity ETFs are weighing on the intermediate-term model score.

Overall Model Output

A Closer Look at Our Tactical Positioning Targets

Each day, Meeder analyzes and ranks over 70 different factors from our short, intermediate, and long-term models. The dynamic statistical model incorporates factors covering macroeconomic, fundamental, trends and technical analysis to estimate the potential reward and marketplace risk of the equity markets. The Meeder Spectrum, Muirfield, Balanced, Moderate Allocation, and Conservative Allocation funds utilize this strategy for the Defensive Equity portion of their portfolios. The Defensive Equity Strategy guides the allocation of each fund's equity sleeve and the actual proportion of equity investments in any fund will vary depending on the investment objectives of the fund.

Understanding the Defensive Equity Snapshot

The vertical axis of the grid combines the scores of our long-, intermediate-, and short-term models to arrive at the reward value for the stock market. The horizontal axis represents the model's internal measure of stock market risk. The reward value is divided by marketplace risk to arrive at our recommended percentage of Net Equity Exposure.
